The entrance of the Penansula is the Great Wall, constructed to withstand invasions of the Demi-Human tribes of the Abelion hills, located in the east of the Holy Kingdom. Holy Queen and Counselors are to face the emperor Demin. Remedies believes that this failure is Neia's fault. When asked about this plan by Gustav, Ainz points out that the prism fields are probably not so much food, much less battle men because of malnutrition. The King of the Wizard came to talk to her personally, for the dead -vivos claim that he has another proposal for delegation. Demon wants to ensure that his mission is a success this time and not repeating his failure again, as last in the restricted kingdom. He then hears someone knock on his door. After a rije of discussions, Neia left the hostel to cool the head, but suddenly she hears an invisible voice coming from her and she directs the girl to a alley on her back. Pabel claims she will miss Orlando when the bells suddenly played, which meant that the Demi-Humans were signed. Upon entering the city, the delegation was surprised by the Varians Raães that inhabited the city after its conquest by the Kingdom of the Wizard. Walking towards the brilliant golden pavilha, the party came across a trio of dwarfs along the way. The reasons for which Orlando wants to be pilgrimage of a warrior The Wizard's Kingdom. After you question them about the state of what's going on in city, city, the envoys are surprised that the dwarves were technical advisers that came from the Dwarf Kingdom itself and that they were using the Undead to pave roads. Although the resistance force successfully freed more towns and settlements, the food supplies are not nearly enough to sustain the Liberation Army and its recruits. The delegation is surprised that they are allowed to bear their arms in the presence of the Sorcerer King. He introduces himself as Demon Emperor Jaldabaoth and states his intentions for the Holy Kingdom. As the city was liberated from the demi-humans, the Army discovers that one member of the royal family is interned there. Once there, Neia reports back to her superior Remedios that the nobles she tried to contact would not be able to receive them due to the lack of time. He stops for a moment to kill Orlando, who tried to attack him, before commanding the demi-humans to attack the now devastated wall and the invasion of the Holy Kingdom begins. As well as signaling to them that he has summoned a meteor from the sky, which as a result, crashes down on the city wall and destroying it. Gustav scolds Remedios for accepting the proposal of the Sorcerer King so easily without considering the consequences. Gustav, however, came to her aid, explaining to Remedios that other nobles refused their requests for the same reasons. Calca tries to parley with Jaldabaoth, but the demon reveals that he only wanted to survey the city, to see if there was a being in the Holy Kingdom that could match him in power. It is the second arc wherein which Jaldabaoth makes another appearance involved in attacking a nation, the first one being the attack on the Re-Estize Kingdom. The supreme commander of the allied forms is the Emperor Demon Jaldabaoth. When remedies is totally polished with magic, she began to attack JaldabaBaoth offensively unsuccessfully, but managed to overthrow the Demon in a prost. The paladins try to combat it, but are surprised to learn that the new form of the Demon gave him some kind of immunity to his weapons. During a gathering with the blue roses, the delegation realized that no help would come from the remaining kingdom, or his nobles, and the person capable of defeating Jaldabaoth, Momon, swore he swore to the Sorcerer King, Ainz Ooal Gown. Somewhere in this fortified building on the Great Wall, Orlando Campano, a corporal of the Holy Kingdom's Exà © Rcito hopes his shift will end. She deduces that he is extremely magnanizmo, acting as an ordinary person from time to time. The scene changes to Neia Baraja, a shield of the Exà ©rcito of Liberation of the Holy Kingdom, walking through the streets of the Royal Capital of the Re-Estize Kingdom. To fulfill their plan of agreement, they order Neia to act as Ainz's personal guard, as well as to keep a 3 eye on him.
